Wm. Faversham; Last Call

The performance of "The Faun" tonight is the last opportunity El Paso will have to see this wonderfully clever comedy of Edward Kuobhuch's in which Mr. Faversham and Miss Opp and the remainder of their capable . company scored such a phenomenal success at the El Paso theatre last night. There never was another play just like "The Faun." It sparkles with wit and flushes with humor, and with it all teaches a most wholesome lesson. True, there are other plays that do this, but not one that does it in the unique manner of "The Faun." As great as is the play, it is no greater than is Mr. Faversham's superb interpretation of the title . role. His work is exceedingly artistic and stamps him as a really great 4

Owing to a mistake in the copy, the program last night credited Miss Celia Haskelf with playing the part of Lady Alexander Vancey when in reality it was Miss Julie Opp, who in private life is Mrs. William Faversham. This mistake was caused by the fact that several weeks ago Miss Opp was suddenly called to New York, since which time the part has been played by her understudy, Miss Haskell. Miss Opp resumed her position as leading lady only last night, and her work in the role which she plays makes it easily understood why numerous New York managers have repeatedly tried to star her in some new play.

There are still a few good seats left for tonight and these may be secured, either by phone or in person, at the office of the Crawford theatre up to 7 o'clock, after which time they will be on sale at the box office of the El Paso theatre. If you failed to see "The Faun" last night or this afternoon, you are cheating yourself out of the artistic treat of the season if you stay away tonight, which assertion will be promptly confirmed by asking anyone who has seen this wonderful play. Consuit the review of the dramatic critics—men whose training has made them competent to judge, but who are proverhially hard to please—and see what they say. A criticism of last night's play may be found elsewhere in this paper.

Opie Reid Next Wednesday Night

Next Wednesday night at the El Paso theatre Opic Reid, the well known journalist, author and humorist, will appear at the El Paso theatre . rous readings and impersonations from his best known works. . Mr. Reid has always been regarded as one of the greatest humorists in the country and since the death of Mark Twain, he has been considered by many as the greatest living American humorist. Delightful as are his steries in cold print, they are infinitely more enjoyable when the personal element comes in, for Mr. Reid has all those attributes which make a great orator-a splendid voice, a magnetic personality and a message which goes straight to the heart.

This entertainment by Opic Reid is the third number of the Redpath Lycenm Course, which is given under the anspices of the El Paso Women's Club. Considering the great merit of the attraction, the prices are exceedingly low, this being so because the ladies wish to bring pleasure and benefit to as many as possible. However, any money which is cleared is used to further the various benevolent enterprises which the club has under way. Seata on the lower floor are $1.00; balcony 75 cents; gallery 50 🚁 cents. The advance sale will begin Tuesday morning at the International Book Store. Those holding season tickets may secure reserved seats on the lower floor by surrendering the coupon good for this performance and

Special Bill at the Crawford

Tonight and tomorrow matines and night at the Crawford theatre Mr. + Albert Taylor and his company will present Sol Smith Russell's greatest comedy success, "A Poor Relation." This is a great human interest story and is recognized by all critics as one of the greatest comedy-dramas ever written in the English language.

Mr. Russell starred in the play for many years, so long in fact that the play became indissolubly associated with his name; but even since his death this great play has continued to be one of the most popular ones in . the entire repertoire of pays, because it holds up the mirror to Nature and + shows humanity just as it is. Prices for the matinee tomorrow are ten and twenty cents and for tonight and tomorrow night 15, 35 and 50 cents.

SANTA FE OFFICIALS AT THE CONVENTION

During the meeting of the Panhandle After Inspecting El Paso and Southwestern Cattlemen's association in El Paso, the Santa Fe railroad tion in El Paso, the Santa Fe railroad company probably had the largest representation at the convention of any other railroad. These men mingled with the cattlemen and helped to show them a good time. They are still here fraterailring with the cattlemen who have remained over in El Paso. The personnel of the party included F. S. Brooks, general livestock agent of the road, with headquarters in Kansas City; H. S. Var Siyek, assistant general livestock agent, Trimidad; W. F. funds necessary for the building of eight and three-fourths miles of road from the point where the road leading northeast of town acrosses the Santa Fe railroad. The contract for the building of this road has been let to G. M. Sadler. The grubbing is to be done for $10 per acre, and $7 nores, or a strip 25 feet wide and $3-4 miles long, while be grubbed out preparatory to building the road. The method then employed will be that of dragging, which work will be done by flive hig mule teams and grader, at $20 per day. The sand will be acraped away, leaving a hard solid roadbed and this being an east and west road, the wind will keep it cleared of sand. There will be four culverts to put in. Six hundred and twenty-five dollars has been subscribed for this work, and it is quite likely that some of the county funds will be applied to either this road or a road branching from it and going to Nutt station. Application has been made to the state road commission for help also. Several other subscriptions are in sight. Any amount needed for grubbing and dragging will be used in handling callohe for making a bard surface in spots where the formation is inclined to be soft.
